

Yusen Logistics awarded AGA Rangemaster's first outsourced logistics contract

Following a strategic decision to streamline processes AGA Rangemaster, the world's oldest range cooker manufacturer, has outsourced their retail UK transportation to Yusen Logistics.

With product design focused on fulfilling customer desires, the award winning British manufacturer, AGA Rangemaster, represents high performance and superior quality. Whilst over 700 product variations offer exceptional choice to meet customers' exact requirements.

Selected for their decades of experience and specialism in the white goods industry, Yusen Logistics has designed a bespoke solution tailored for AGA Rangemaster's retail customers that reflects their own high standards and strict quality controls. Collections from AGA Rangemaster's historical site in Royal Leamington Spa are cross docked at Yusen Logistics' dedicated white goods facility, offering consolidation opportunities with other industry leading brands along with regular and reliable deliveries within trade opening hours.

On their new partnership, Darryl Hudson, Head of Logistics and Field Operations for AGA Rangemaster, commented: "We operate to a host of internationally recognised standards and strict quality controls that are in place at every stage during design, development and manufacture. It is important that our logistics provider is an extension of these and Yusen Logistics' white goods expertise, experience and their company culture showed us they could offer exactly this."

Duncan Butler, General Manager for Yusen Logistics UK, added: "We're excited to be working with such a prestigious brand. Together we are now looking at opportunities to further improve processes and procedures to create an even leaner operation. All whilst maintaining an industry leading 99.4% OTIF to keep customer service at the core."
